‘Ebb & Flow’ works inspired by time spent at Sandy Neck Beach

Barnstable High School Art Students, Fine Arts 4 Class

Artwork on display at the Hyannis Youth and Community Center now through April 3, 2020

The Hyannis Youth and Community Center’s (HYCC) United Cultures Resource Room (also known as Barnstable Public School’s Family & Community Engagement Center) now features wall exhibit panels to showcase a variety of student creative works including literary and visual art pieces by Cape Cod students throughout the year. “The Hyannis Youth and Community Center is more than just sports; our youth’s talents should be highlighted in all of their achievements and passions,” says Recreation Director Patti Machado. The inaugural student spotlight exhibit features students in Abby Fay Smith’s Barnstable High School Fine Arts 4 class. The exhibit is on display now through April 3, 2020. The United Cultures Resource Room is open to the general public Monday through Friday, 8:00 AM-5:00 PM, Saturday, 9:00 AM-5:00 PM and occasional evenings during BHS special events. The Hyannis Youth & Community Center is located at 141 Bassett Lane, Hyannis, MA 02601. 508-790-6345. The Hyannis Youth and Community Center is a 105,000 sq. ft. full service community center featuring twin NHL size ice skating rinks, a 12,500 sq. ft. wood floor gymnasium, walking track and outdoor skate park. The purpose of the HYCC is to provide state-of-the-art accessible facilities for a variety of recreational programs and special events, competitive sports organizations, after-school activities and opportunities for the community at large to foster educational excellence and physical growth across all generations.

ABOUT THE EXHIBIT

In October 2019 students from Barnstable High School’s Fine Arts 4 Class participated in a field trip out to the Sandy Neck House at the “Halfway Point,” so called because of its location half way down the inner rim of Sandy Neck. The building, more of a nature camp than a “house,” is nestled in the maritime forest perched above the Barnstable Great Marsh. It overlooks a thick matted patch of marsh grass, Osprey nesting sites and a cluster of bird houses opening up to a view of Barnstable Harbor. Students Celita Cadet, Triona Ferrie, Victoria Hall, Alison Kearney, Shaya Morales, Stephen Pond, Alec Rogalski, Sam Van Gelder and Elisha Watson were tasked with combining what they had previously researched regarding the ecology, history, topography, and conservation aspects of Sandy Neck with their experiences journeying out to the House out at the Halfway Point. Accompanying them were Town of Barnstable Sandy Neck Natural Resource Officer Sean Kortis and Barnstable High School art teachers Abby Fay Smith and Matt Kemp. During the day the students observed baby diamondback terrapins saved by the Town’s conservation efforts, multiple tracks from a range of Sandy Neck fauna, explored the trails snaking through the maritime forest, gathered materials, and created a series of plein air sketches and wrote about their adventure. From this experience, the group created a range of artistic responses, utilizing a variety of techniques including photo collage, mixed media painting, traditional acrylic painting, printmaking, and sculpture. They tell the story of the interaction of two of Barnstable’s greatest resources: the natural beauty of Sandy Neck and the bright, talented, and inspiring students of Barnstable High School. For more information on the HYCC student artwork spotlight or the adult artist excursion program out at Sandy Neck Beach, email melissa.chartrand@town.barnstable.ma.us or visit on-line www.ArtsBarnstable.com.

A Different Life Watercolor, acrylic paint, feathers, and pastel

This field trip helped me be more comfortable being in nature because before I used to just be an indoor person. Once I was able to just get away from everyday life and not worry about school for a day is what really helped me connect with my surroundings and have a whole different view towards the environment that I live in. The main thing that amazed me was the number of different plant species that call this place home. I think compared to my other visits to Sandy Neck the thing that stood out to me the most was the size of the park because in the past my family has only taken our boat to the beach near the lighthouse and it never really hit me that it’s not just sand and a couple of houses, it is an entire ecosystem that is so vital to our community and we don’t really seem to notice. I think the most important part of the experience was when we took those ten minutes to go off by ourselves and write about our experience. For me, that’s when things really started to sink in. I was able to just enjoy my surroundings. What I wrote were my favorite things that we discovered during the trip like the animal bones because they gave me another impression of how this place is not always so peaceful. We may see it as a bad thing but it’s what makes life so beautiful. Some people that inspired me for this project was Bjarke Ingels and Paolo Soleri Arcosanti who are architects that have shown alternate ways of creating habitats for people that create an environment harmonious with nature. I’m always looking for architects that can come up with new innovations that will help lower the impact on the environment by making more eco-friendly structures. What inspired my work the most was that I wanted to jump into the life of the turtles that we got to release into the water because I wanted to show what this world is like to the animals that live here. I wanted to show that even though they are just one species out of the thousands that live in Sandy Neck they are still important for this ecosystem to run. I wanted to show that nothing in this place is more important than the other from the animals to the plant life to the landscape. That’s why I made the turtle shell to act as a bowl for the landscape and plant life to show that they are just as important. The Sparrow helps show the dark side of this world and how its part is important as well. For my medium, I used watercolor, acrylic paint, feathers, and pastel. I used watercolor to help remind the viewer of the ocean because it gives the background a wavy look. I used feathers for the sparrow because I wanted the viewer to have more of an interaction with this world by wanting to feel the piece. I used acrylic for the plant life because I wanted to be sure to get more detail in but still making it seem like its a memory. I used pastel because I wanted to experiment with something I have never really used in my artwork and it blended nicely on the turtle shell when I mixed it with water.
